

The Stanford Bar's Tribute to Col. Swope.

A meeting of the bar was held in the Court-house Tuesday afternoon to express its high regard for the late Col. A. M. Swope and adopt suitable resolutions on his life and character.

Col. T. W. Varnon was called to preside and circuit clerk, J. P. Bailey, was made secretary. Short eulogies were delivered by Lawyers Welch, Hill, McRoberts, Gentry and Miller, after which the committee appointed to draft the resolutions, Messrs. Hill, Welch and Miller, reported the following, which were adopted:

Resolved, 1st. That the Lincoln County Bar, the senior members of which have known Hon. A. M. Swope from his boyhood and all during his manhood, and business and political career, take great pleasure in expressing our opinion that he was a gentleman who through his attainments and virtues was worthy of the confidence that was reposed in him generally, and in every sense deserving of the honors and positions that were bestowed upon him. That he was a man of brilliant attainments, of generous, magnanimous feeling, of commendable aspirations, of honest convictions, of a noble resolution in all his purposes, of unflinching courage, of steady honesty, of open hearted charity and in all things honorable. And we do most heartily and with much sorrow sympathize with his family, the people of this county and State, our own profession and the country at large upon the loss of this excellent and useful man.

2d. That we commend his virtues and his active career, whereby he attained to a position of honor and usefulness, to our fellow citizens generally and to our young men particularly.

3d. That we do hereby take much satisfaction in testifying to the fact that our commendation of him in this county of his birth and early manhood is not confined to our own profession, but to our whole people, by whom he was not only admired and respected, but most tenderly beloved and this irrespective of political or social differences.

4th. That the members of this bar, through the old friends, fellow countrymen and companions of Hon. A. M. Swope, do most heartily sympathize with the widow and orphaned children of the Hon. Wm. Cassius Goodloe, in their sudden, unexpected and terrible sorrow, with the hope that "He who tempereth the wind to the shorn lamb" will be their comforter in their great bereavement.

5th. That as members of the legal profession and of a bar which has heretofore healed its differences without resorting to the desperate resource of bloodshed, we do hereby express our unqualified regret that the late differences between Hon. A. M. Swope and Hon. Wm. Cassius Goodloe, both useful, influential and honorable members of the legal profession, should have culminated in the terrible tragedy at Lexington, whereby both, useful and valuable to their families and to the country have lost their lives—and we do most earnestly appeal to the members of the legal profession of the whole country, and especially of Kentucky, nearest and dearest to us, to have, promote and cultivate a sentiment of laudable aspiration and ambition, whether professional, political or otherwise, that shall be devoid of animosity and hatred. That unpleasant and hostile differences shall if possible be avoided and if quarrels ensue that they shall be adjusted and reconciled through pacific methods, and that the members of the legal profession through their conduct towards and intercourse with each other, set an example of peace and good will and if possible make it the foundation of social order and security.

6th. That a copy of these resolutions be furnished the press for publication and the Lincoln County and Circuit Courts be requested to spread them at large upon their order books.

HUBBLE.—C. R. Harris sold to James Robinson some long yearlings at 3 cents. Wm. Hubble & Son sold a young jack to a Missouri party for $900. Robt. Hocker has his house on Cherry street about completed. Jerry Davidson is fixing to build on Yeaky's land to use his lifetime. Bro. Montgomery will preach at the school-house Saturday night. Moses Miller made Miss Dora Leak his better half last week. Jane Bobbitt, of Pulaski, is visiting her brother, William Hubble. Mr. Herrin sold John Wood two 600 pound heifers at $1.90 per hundred. Bad Cox, at the old Engleman place, has the mill in grinding trim again. R. L. Hubble sold to Robinson, near Hustonville, 40 Missouri mules at $30. Alex Hocker bought one pony of John Wood for $45. Turkeys are brisk here at 5 and eggs at 15.

—Crossed in love, Miss Gertie Kimball, a Brooklyn belle, committed suicide.

—Calvin S. Brice has formally announced his candidacy for the Ohio Senatorship.

Our Hannah Jane.

Our Hannah Jane was thin and weak And ashy white her lip and cheek, We often thought—and thought with pain—"We soon must lose our Hannah Jane." With change of doctors, change of air, She sought for healing everywhere. And, when our hopes were almost past, "Favorite Prescription" was tried at last. It gave us joy, it gave us hope, It ceased to pine, she ceased to weep, (Pierce's remedies are sure and true) Now Hannah Jane is good as new.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the only medicine for women sold by druggists under a positive guarantee from the manufacturers that it will give satisfaction in every case, or money refunded. This guarantee has been placed on the bottle wrapper and faithfully carried out for many years.

Dr. Pierce's Pellets—cleanse and regulate the stomach, bowels and system generally. Once done, purely vegetable.

The I. J. Man at Wayne Circuit Court with his Note Book.

Six years ago this month, astride a black horse, which was as far from being an equine beauty as he was from being a good saddle, I came into Monticello for my first time. I was impressed then with the quaint but cozy appearance of the dwellings, with the hospitality of the citizens, and lastly, but by far not least, the good looking, rosy-cheeked lassies that Wayne county should with pride claim her own. Each of my yearly visits has increased my admiration of those queer buildings, caused me to enjoy with greater pleasure that genuine hospitality as well as entertain with a decidedly tender degree an exalted opinion of the fair daughters. I like Monticello because of the freedom that penetrates one's system while in her boundary, because I know all of her people and know them well and thirdly because they show a peculiar fondness for the INTERIOR JOURNAL. Coupling these advantages together, I would consider myself fit only for treasons, stratagems and spoils were I not the possessor of a feeling wonderfully kind for this good but quiet old place.

In company with Hon. R. C. Warren I left Stanford Sunday morning to first drive to Junction City, there to take train for Somerset, where a rig was at the depot to convey us to Wayne's capital. Thoughtful as women usually are, Mr. Warren's wife had prepared for him a delightful lunch, which he invited me to accept of. On the bank of Cumberland river, where a beautiful spray of water comes from a high ledge of rocks, and where the sun was shining brightly we halted to dine. The place was a picturesque one, presenting an excellent view of the smoothly flowing Cumberland and the fertile valleys that border it, and because of its likeness to a spring and the surroundings in Old Virginia we christened it in honor of it and hereafter it will be known by us, at least, as Tinkling Spring.

A large crowd attended Court Monday but very little business was done. The docket is a light one and excepting the case of Bates for killing Bartleson, there is little litigation. The grand jury, of course, will make it lively for the boys though, and so long as it lasts there need be no occasion for a dull time.

It matters not whether there is not nor is to be any business the lawyers come all the same. They are here (permit me to quote Mr. Watterson) from Cape Cod to Kalamazoo and each day brings one or two more. Lincoln's representative is an honorable exception to this rule, for besides being in two or three good cases which were expected to come up this court, he was engaged immediately on his arrival here to assist in the prosecution of Bates, who killed Bartleson.

There is considerable excitement here over the proposed railroad. The tax of $85,000 has already been voted and at present it looks like the day is not far off when the shrill whistle of the locomotive will reverberate from hill to valley and valley to hill in Wayne county. It will be a great thing for Monticello, so the best business men think, and I trust it will prove of the great benefit they think it will.

I spent a short while on "Jockey street" Monday and I must say these are the "tradingest" people on earth. Some six or eight trades were made in the few moments I was there and an "old professional" told me there had been fully 50 that morning. A long looked for wedding occurred Tuesday morning some six miles out in the country. Mr. William McConaghy and Miss Jessie, the beautiful daughter of Dr. J. A. Jones, were the participants. Both of the contracting parties are the elite of this section and the affair was an elegant and memorable one.

Where is Bright Ferrill? This question has been propounded to me a hundred times and shows beyond doubt that that gentleman is a popular one in this section as he is in Lincoln. That Bright showed good fleet of foot he is a few days ago was received with surprise here by the people who thought him brave enough to tackle a buzz saw.

I am under obligations to my republican friend Hen Tuttle for valuable services rendered me. He not only introduced me to all of his republican friends, but made the majority of them pull out the duets and subscribe to the "cheapest and best."

That good old democrat, Col. Ike Sheppard, is decidedly the most rejoiced and delighted man over the recent democratic cyclone that swept over a half dozen republican or pivotal States, that I know of. He is confident that the "world is going democratic and that Grover Cleveland will be the next man to honor the presidential chair." His defeat for representative has not lessened in the least his love for the cause and he can be relied on as doing his very best when Wayne county is called upon.

Mr. M. D. Hardin, who has for a half century given the traveling public the best in the land to eat and feathery beds to rest upon, will quit the hotel business Jan. 1st and move from Monticello. He is undecided as to where he will locate, but thinks he will spend his declining years in Sanford.

DANVILLE, BOYLE COUNTY.

—Stop and think how foolish it is to invest money in lottery tickets. I know a man who has invested $100 a year for 22 years in the L. S. Lottery and has never drawn one cent.

—The ladies of the Methodist church will give a candy-pulling Friday night, 15th; also will serve dinner county court day, the proceeds to go towards the erection of the new church, which will be built in the near future. The pastor is also asking for contributions for the same purpose.

—If there is a time and place a person ought to be polite and respectful, it is at church. We notice at most all churches people putting on their overcoats and wraps while the invitation song or doxology is being sung. I think it would be just as polite to put on your hat before the service is over.

—On Friday night, December 27th the Anacoda Club, of this place, will celebrate the 50th year of its existence. The Club will issue invitations to each member's wife, each ex-member and wife and to each deceased member's wife, which will be near 100 in all. This semi-centennial celebration will be given at the Deaf and Dumb Institute.

—Since the election things have about settled down to their usual way. The successful candidates are jubilant, but doubtless get tired shaking hands with the voters from now till next August, when the final election will come off. The ticket is a good one. If there are any hard feelings let them drop and all work together and elect a full democratic ticket next August.

—The marriage of Mr. W. B. Thomas, of Maysville, to Miss Mary Cheek, of this place, took place Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock at the residence of the bride's mother, Rev. F. J. Cheek, of Paris, performed the ceremony. They are both well known here; both are natives of this place. Mr. Thomas was formerly express agent at this place, but located in Maysville about a year ago. They left on the first train for Cincinnati to spend a few days. From there they will go to Maysville, their future home. Mr. Ad M. King will lead to the marriage altar Miss Sadie Bright, the 20th.

—The lecture given Tuesday night by Col. J. P. Sanford was appreciated by a large audience. The subject of his lecture was changed from "Walks in Rome" which was at first announced, to "The Old Times and the New." The lecture, which lasted an hour and three-quarters, was interesting from beginning to end. Mr. Sanford said he had been around the world three times and crossed the ocean 19 times. The description of his travels and what he saw were presented in such a way as to make one imagine he could almost see them. At times in his talk he would tell things which were very laughable and which made it more enjoyable. If the remaining five lectures, which are to follow, are as good as this one, no one I think will regret the time and money expended.

They took a car of horses and camping outfit with them.

DANVILLE.—The marriage of Dr. Ad M. King to Miss Sadie Rochester Bright is announced to take place in this city, Wednesday, Nov. 20th. The marriage of Mr. W. B. Thomas, of Maysville, to Miss Mary Cheek, of this city, will be solemnized this morning. Rev. F. J. Cheek, of Paris, brother of the bride, will perform the ceremony. Mr. Godfrey Darbshire, who married Miss Annie, daughter of Col. Isaac Shelby, died at Key West. Sam Moore sold 100 head of 1,100 pound cattle at 2½ to 3 cents.

CRAB ORCHARD.

—Miss Nattie Collier's school closed Friday.

—R. G. Ward shipped a car-load of hogs to Cincinnati this week.

—Turnips and shoot are now delighting the palate of the epicure.

—One of our young men will observe the president's proclamation by taking to himself a bonny bride Thanksgiving.

—The funeral of Mrs. Nannie Corniny, who died recently, was preached at the Christian church Sunday by Elder J. G. Livingston.

—All persons indebted to Chadwick & Armendt will please call and settle immediately with J. T. Chadwick, at Chadwick & Edmiston's new store, as I have sold out and the business must be wound up. W. B. Armendt.

—The candy party, given by Miss Ella May Saunders at her home Friday night, was a highly enjoyable affair to a select company of the young lady's friends. Miss Ella is one of the prettiest of C. O.'s dawning belles, and since her debut into society has done her part of entertaining.

—J. H. Hutchison, of Pineville, is here. Miss Pauline Hardin and Mrs. J. G. Livingston have returned from a visit to Mrs. Dr. Alcorn, of Hustonville. Miss Lura Doores is spending a week with Miss Mock, of Stanford. Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Burk, nee Dillon, of Danville, are at Capt. F. W. Dillon's. A. T. Nunneley has been buying hogs in this locality this week. Mr. J. S. Edmiston is contemplating a trip to Birmingham, Ala. Mrs. Obe Linsey is lying dangerously ill of intermittent fever.

—An important business transfer will materialize here this week. D. B. Edmiston having purchased Joe Coffey's large stock of general merchandise, will combine it with that of J. T. Chadwick and the two under the firm name of Edmiston & Chadwick will begin business in the spacious store-room lately used by Mr. Coffey. Both gentlemen, beside being progressive and abreast with the trade, are clever, courteous and widely known in this section, which bespeaks for them a large share of the public patronage.

—One of our young ladies, desirous of possessing that most precious of all gifts to a woman—a beautiful complexion, undertook a few nights ago to discover a bleaching process that would answer the cherished wish of her sex. So, as she told us, she procured some fine flour and mixing it with tepid water, made a kind of paste which she spread on a piece of cotton and applied to her not unlovely face before retiring. She fell asleep, but about midnight a sensation about her face similar to that experienced by an eater of unripe persimmons, awoke her. The paste was drawing like a mustard plaster. She made an effort to remove it, but it was as tight as Dick's hat-band and growing tighter. Her ambition to have "clear skin" forsook her. She arose and began to peel; but was not much comforted when, after two hours of the most excruciating experience, she went back to her couch, with less expression and still less skin on her face. We record this incident for the benefit of old maids and freckled-faced misses, who may be tempted into a like error.

—The Goodloe-Swope tragedy has been the only topic discussed here since Saturday. Col. Goodloe's handsome figure was a familiar one to many of our citizens. During the two seasons that Gen. Robinson managed the Springs and his family were guests there and their magnificent horses and livery were remembered by all. Col. Swope was also well known here, and his brother James was for four years gauger at J. H. Hutchings' distillery near town. In an interview with A. M. Hiatt, a cousin of Col. Swope, who resides here, he had this to say of his distinguished kinsman: "Armp and I were cousins and were raised up together. He might have been a common clod-hopper like myself but for one circumstance. It was this: When we were boys together working the farm on Hanging Fork, our grandfather, Armstead Miller, for whom we were both named, died. In his will he bequeathed a thousand dollars apiece to Armp and myself. We were pining when this good news reached us. Armp tilted his plow to one side and said: 'This is the last furrow I'll ever run.' And it was. He laid out his thousand dollars in schooling and I, like the prodigal son, wasted mine in riotous living. He was a promising young fellow then and he died a brilliant man."

—Rev. Ross, a Methodist preacher at Lockeford, Cal., killed his wife and son, in an insane fit, it is said.

—Charles Bolton and Alex. Kerr, brothers-in-law, fought with knives at Southdowns, Ill., and Kerr will die.

—The Kentucky Classical and Business Female College at North Middletown, Bourbon county, burned to the ground Wednesday. The loss of the building, furniture, etc., is carefully estimated at $15,000 and the insurance on all was $7,500. Every stitch of clothing belonging to the young ladies and teachers—except their night apparel—was lost.

W. P. WALTON.

THAT Cols. Swope and Goodloe were possessed of some of the noblest traits of humanity, and that the former deserved the highest praise for attaining single handed and unaided the exalted positions, both politically and socially, that he enjoyed, none can deny. But it is apt to be forgotten, in recalling their many virtues that these fine gentlemen, as everybody regarded them, bore murder continually in their hearts, ready to carry it into execution whenever the occasion presented itself. There is every constituent of murder in their act of butchering each other, including the necessary one of malice, which was ever uppermost in their minds. They murdered each other as each intended to do whenever the chance came. It is well that both died after one did. Had either lived after the horrible crime remorse and misery would have clung to him for life, even though the courts had gone through the forms of acquittal. Especially is this true of Col. Goodloe, who held his victim up and continued to plunge the savage knife into him after he had cut his heart in two. The Louisville Times, after discussing the tragedy, closes a timely article as follows: "Col. Goodloe would have reproached himself hourly with the thought that the encounter might have been avoided, that the blood of his fellow might not have been on his hands, and that he might have saved his honor without taking the life that was not his to take and that was not his to restore. This would have been his future, even had the tragedy been unattended by the ferocity of holding a dying man on his feet and sending a dagger into his vitals. But in a christian community what could have been in store for a man who made the horrible remark attributed to Col. Goodloe when the butchery was over? 'He bellowed like a calf.' Had Goodloe lived a century those words would have been associated with him, and men—even friends—would have shrunk from him and shuddered at his approach. The result would have been desperation and misery, and however much we may deplore the tragedy, the death of Goodloe was a blessing to himself, to his friends and to the community."

GEN. FAYETTE HEWITT, after making Kentucky one of the best auditors she has ever had, has resigned to give more attention to his private interests, which include the presidency of the State National Bank. He has served the State most honorably and naught can be said against him, save that he had too much confidence in Dick Tate, in which, however, he was not alone. The governor has appointed Insurance Commissioner L. C. Norman to fill the vacancy and promoted H. T. Duncan, Deputy Insurance Commissioner to the charge of that office. Capt. W. T. Havens, of the Mt. Sterling Sentinel, succeeds Mr. Duncan and his friends of the State press will feel much gratified at this deserved recognition of a good man and a true democrat.

The Chicago Times very aptly remarks, "What slashing denunciations of the barbarism of the South we would have from the leading Northern Republican organs if a slight drawback did not occur in the narrative. How we would have denounced Swope and Goodloe if only they had been Confederate brigadiers!" Very true. But in this instance the actors in the horrible tragedy were republicans and it is only spoken of as an unfortunate affair.

It is said that a man named Pinkerton started to Washington as soon as he heard Goodloe was shot to be in time with his petition to succeed him. We do not know Pinkerton, but that very act damns him, and we take it that the president will not appoint a man to such an office who could be guilty of such indecent haste.

It is stated that many of the members of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, opposing extreme methods and the third-party movement to which the union is pledged, will secede and join the new organization, which is non-political and more conservative. The idea is a good one.

In an article stating how many men Cassius M. Clay had gotten away with, in "personal encounters, which were forced on him," the Cincinnati Commercial-Gazette failed to tell about the poor negro he killed under the most questionable circumstances. Tell the whole tale when you start out.

The official count makes Cincinnati 7,253 democratic. Louisville will have to hump herself in December, unless she would play second fiddle to Porkopolis as a democratic city.

FRENCH TIFTON has the exceeding bad taste to print his own picture in his paper, the Richmond Chimney. He must be vain of his elongated corporosity.

GIBSON TAYLOR has assumed editorial control of the Winchester Sun, lately disposed of by John L. Bosley.

ALTHOUGH nearly all of the newspapers seem to be on Goodloe's side, the fact is pretty clearly demonstrated that he was the aggressor. His uncalculated, not to say exaggerated, remark at the Louisville convention first caused the trouble and his rough "You obstruct the way, sir," brought on the tragedy. Col. Swope was not a blood-thirsty man, but patient and long suffering, though it was not in his nature to forever brook causeless insult. Goodloe might have easily avoided the difficulty and left his enemy to carry out his intention of leaving the State for a Western home in a short time. It is well indeed that he followed his victim so soon into the great unknown. So bloody and heartless a butcher did not deserve to live. A remarkable fact in connection with the affair is that no dying declaration by Goodloe has been given to the press. If this statement was favorable to him it certainly would have been made public.

THAT sanctimonious son-of-a-sea-cook, Postmaster General John Wamamaker, whose position in Harrison's Cabinet was bought and paid for, promised Gen. Wade Hampton that the postmaster at Columbia, S. C., where the general gets his mail, should serve his time out and that he would consult him with reference to his successor. Instead of keeping his word as all pious Sunday-school superintendents are supposed to do, this bright and shining light of republicanism and religion, removed the democrat and appointed a republican without ever saying a word to Hampton. Thereupon the general very natural denounces him as a liar and suggests that he study the story of Ananias and Sapphira and lecture on it to his class. A challenge is in order, but it will not be sent. The sniffling hypocrite will continue to lie and lick stamps, pray and prevaricate, exhort and equivocate.

THERE is already a great scramble for the office of collector of the Lexington district, made vacant by the death of Col. Goodloe. Young Blaine, who has been deputy under three administrations, including Gen. Robinson's, is the best qualified man for the place and ought to have it, but we fear he is not politician enough. We asked Col. Bradley who would get the appointment. He had no idea, but supposed the president would name some one not connected with either of the factions of Swope or Goodloe. He said he did not believe Denny would want it as he had a better thing in his law practice, but he would be a good man for the position. In the meantime Mr. Blaine, who is a relative of the Secretary, is running the office as he has done for the last several years.

THE citizens of Louisa, Ky., held an indignation meeting and passed some salty resolutions on Postmaster McClure when they found that he telegraphed to Washington asking for government protection, as the democrats had demolished his office in celebrating the recent victories. The real damage done was the breaking of three panes of glass and a glass door panel by concussion produced by an explosion of dynamite in the middle of the street and for which responsible parties offered to pay in full. McClure's case is one of those which might properly come under the supervision of the gentleman who bosses the job of dragging the creek with the carcasses of such cusses as he.

THERE is no silly sentiment about the Indiana Supreme Court, which has decided that women are not eligible to an elective office. Unfortunately the Kentucky Court of Appeals had already decided that they can hold office in this State.

Gov. ARNETT's plurality in New Jersey is 14,552, against Cleveland's 7,149 in 1888, more than double. New Jersey can always be relied on by the democracy, which rejoices to see her become more democratic at each election.

WICKED Cincinnati has to charter special coaches to take her convicts to the penitentiary. The number shipped Monday was 39 and still there are thousands more to follow.

—W. E. Walker, who was nominated by the democratic committee for county judge, will have a card in this week's issue of the News, declining, for reasons best known to himself, to make the race. We regret exceedingly that matters have got into a shape that prompts this action by the head of the ticket, but Judge Walker is an honest, honorable, conscientious and upright man, as also a judge and he feels justified in taking this action or he would not do so.

—Now if everybody within 20 miles of Lancaster were to see something real funny and laugh their sides sore, let them attend the entertainment to be given by the Ladies' Mite Society of the Presbyterian church entitled "The Old-Fashioned District Skule" on Tuesday evening, Nov. 19th. It is supposed to represent a school of the 18th century and the scholars are impersonated by prominent people of the town, ranging in ages from 30 to 75 years. If it appears as funny to the audience as to the pupils during rehearsal it certainly will bring down the house.

TO THE PEN.—Sheriff Newland took the negroes Ad Clark and Arch Adams to Frankfort yesterday. They get a year each for house-breaking and hog-stealing respectively.

THE inspectors of the L. & N. passed up Wednesday to take a look at the Middlesboro extension of the Cumberland Valley Branch. We'll wager they found things O. K.

THE sympathy of many friends will be with Capt. B. F. Powell in the loss of his excellent wife, notice of which is made elsewhere in this issue. Mrs. Powell was a greatly beloved niece of Postmaster J. R. Marrs, of Danville.

KILLED WITH A STANDARD.—News comes from Casey that Willis Hall, a miller, killed Jack Baker, a farmer, with a wagon standard in a fight, resulting from long enmity, Baker using a rock as his weapon, with which he did no damage.

IT is a shame that the negro, David Adams, should be permitted to remain in jail here, when there are three asylums in the State. He was adjudged a lunatic several months ago. Hysterical screams can be heard day and night, as he tries to flee from imaginary klu-klux. Jailer Owens has frequently to get up two and three times a night to quiet him.

NONE of the mountain jails are capable of holding the murderers that are occasionally put in them. The one at Barbourville was broken Tuesday night and Jeff Henderson, charged with the murder of Howard Monroe, Lawson Goodwin, accused of the murder of Town Marshal Hubbard, and three others, charged with lesser offenses, made their escape. They pryed a stone from the floor and dug out. Better return to your old plan of sending your prisoners here, Mr. County Judge of Knox, if you want them safely held.

THE Richmond Branch of the K. C. has been having tough luck for the last week or two. It is due here at 4:50 p. m. but it has arrived no night sooner than 7 and from that to 2 a. m. The latter delay was caused by a truck of the forward car running out between Hyattsville and Lancaster and throwing the cars around promiscuously.

SAFE ROBBER.—Wednesday evening Mr. D. W. Vandever went to his safe to get change for a bill and found to his surprise that the little sack which he kept his silver in was missing, as well as the contents, amounting to about $10. He had seen it there an hour or two previous to this and as he had not left the store since, the thief must have entered from the back of the store, through either the cellar or one of the windows. Mr. Vandever will investigate the matter and believes he will bring the thief to justice.

ON Wednesday's train Mr. Jas. Hatch, of Graves county, Mo., passed up to Knox county with a raving maniac named Dizney. They started from their home on Monday with the intention of visiting the homes of their childhood in Knox and Bell counties and when leaving Missouri Mr. Dizney was seemingly in fair health and splendid spirits.

About midway between St. Louis and Louisville he seemed to lose his mind and jumping in the middle of the car aisle he began to dance at a furious rate. It took several men to quiet him and every few hours he would attempt to repeat the act, showing that he must have gone crazy on the subject of dancing. Mr. Hatch informed an INTERIOR JOURNAL representative that he had never shown signs of insanity before, but that he had seen him dance at balls all the night long and he believed his mind was interfered with by his incessant thought and love for dancing. He will be taken back to his home and tried for lunacy.

DEATHS' DOINGS.

—POWELL.—Died, at the family residence, in the McCormack neighborhood, at 1:30 p. m., on the 13th inst, Mrs. Sallie Ann Powell, wife of Capt. Ben F. Powell, in the 41st year of her age, of puerperal fever. The deceased was most highly esteemed by all her neighbors for her amiable disposition and her kind and generous deeds to the suffering. For a number of years she had been greatly afflicted, but had borne her afflictions with the most perfect Christian resignation, and when the summons came she was ready and willing to go. She was the mother of quite a large family of children, eight of whom survive her. Services appropriate to her memory were held in McCormack's church on yesterday, Thursday, afternoon, and her remains laid to rest in the old churchyard, where sleep so many of her friends and neighbors.

CHURCH AFFAIRS.

—Elders Martin Owens and Richard and John Todd held an eight days' meeting at Stilesville, Pulaski county and received 18 into the church.

—According to the minutes of the Tate's Creek Association, the Crab Orchard church has the largest Sunday-school of her 23 churches, having 225 scholars. Stanford comes next with 112.

—The union meeting, which is held in the morning at the Baptist church and at night at the Presbyterian, is "gathering them in" in a way that brings joy to the Christian heart. Wednesday night, after a sermon by Rev. Ben Helm, who was broken down, nine persons went forward and made the good confession. This makes 32 additions and confessions since the beginning of the meeting, now in its third week. Mr. Lynch, the young divine who has been doing the preaching principally, has endeared himself to all his hearers by the earnest, eloquent and impressive manner in which he has presented his Master's cause and urged sinners to flee from the wrath to come. Mr. Lynch preached his farewell sermon yesterday morning, at which time four more young people accepted Christ as their Savior. Revs. Hunt and Helm will continue the meeting the balance of the week if no longer.

—FOR SALE.—12 medium to extra mule colts. D. A. and H. H. Colyar, Richmond, Ky.

—R. H. Bronaugh sold to L. D. Garner a 2-year-old jack, by Wm. Hubble's Beecher for $550.

—M. F. Elkin bought of Alex. Holtzclaw a lot of shots at 31 and a fancy lot of heifers of Myers & Luce at 21 cts.

—The Farmers' Alliance, a similar organization to the late grange movement, is agitating several counties in the State.

—Thomas Miller, of Garrard, bought of Joe Coffey, this county, 6 2-year-old mules at $100 and a brood mare for $160.

—Senator Hearst says he is determined that Sunol shall not leave California if he has to pay half a million dollars for him.

—J. C. Fox, of Boyle, bought of W. M. Lackey 44 yearling mules at $80. Mr. Fox will take them to Wayne county and dispose of them.

—Axtell's book, limited to 40 patrons, is already nearly full for next season, at a service fee of $1,000, which admits of the usual return privileges.

—Some of the fastest trotting records of the year, so far, are Guy, 2:10; Axtell 2:12; Belle Hamlin 2:12; Palo Alto, 2:13; Sunol, 2:10; Bonnie McGregor 2:13; and Nelson 2:14.

—The get of the great race-horse Leonatus are said to be very fractious and on that account very hard to train and keep in condition. Only a few of them have as yet proven moderately good.

—In Cincinnati there is a good demand for feeding cattle and butchers are stronger. Very common to best shippers 11 to 14; feeders 21 to 3; hogs are weak at 3 to 3.90; sheep stronger at 21 to 5.

—J. W. Guest is looking up some youngsters to fill his stable, which his son, William, a deservedly popular gentleman, will train for the spring meeting. We hope he will secure one or more equal to or better than Terra Cotta.

—Stanford, the great breeder of great trotters in California, says that he is thoroughly satisfied that the lowest possible record that may be reached by trotters will be made by horses possessing large per centage of racing or thoroughbred blood. Hence he is breeding many thoroughbred mares to trotting horses and thoroughbred horses to trotting bred mares.

—S. D. Goff sold to M. Kahn 325 cattle, weight about 1,550 pounds, at 4 cts. W. B. Kidd shipped to Baltimore Saturday, for export, 400 cattle, grass fed and weighing 1,680 lbs. which were bought at 4 cents, and on Monday he shipped to New York 421 corn fed cattle of 1,550 lbs. weight which were purchased at the same price. W. O. Brock shipped this week to Baltimore 225 hogs, weight from 150 to 250 pounds, which were purchased at 34 cents.—Winchester Democrat.

Telephone Line to Danville.

Prof. L. Eddy writes as follows in reference to his telephone line:

There is now a telephone line from Danville to Lexington, connecting there with lines to Mt. Sterling and Winchester; to Paris, Cynthia and Cincinnati; to Versailles, Frankfort and Louisville. Other places between these are also connected. I have also built lines to Harrodsburg, Perryville, Junction City and other places in Boyle county, placing them thus in immediate communication with each other and with the points first named. I have a contract with the East Tennessee Telephone Co., covering this territory, and my plan is to have lines from Danville to Stanford, to Lancaster and perhaps to Hustonville, and have the centre of the system in Danville that I may be able to oversee it and keep it in order, but communications between any two points can be readily made.

Your people may be a little chary of taking stock in telephones after their former experience with the Bunker instrument and a cheap line and may fear failure again, but my lines have now been in operation for 3, 10 and 18 months and have given the satisfaction usual to the Bell lines, only hard storms causing the exceptions. The commercial travelers of this district have found them of such use that they call earnestly for their extension. That the system is a success is further seen in its extension hitherto, 20 miles of line having been erected the past summer. Not only should Stanford be connected, but the line should be extended to Rowland and Crab Orchard.

—The body of W. H. Sheppard, drowned at Little Hickman, was found in the river at High Bridge.

—Mr. A. J. Coleman, of this county, will wed Miss Carrie Taylor, of Shelby county, at the home of the bride's parents, Nov. 19.—Harrodsburg Sayings.

—The dam of a flour mill above Alton, Ont., broke and the water swept down toward the town, carrying away six mills and several dwellings and doing much other damage.

—Wils Howard, the Harlan county desperado, ceased from his lawless acts long enough to write a column and a half of lurid matter to the Courier-Journal, in which he claims that he is not as black as painted, though all who oppose him are horse thieves and scoundrels.

Col. Welch's Response.

MESSES HUTCHINGS, BRONAUGH, HARDIN AND OTHERS—GENTLEMEN:—I have read your "open letter" in the INTERIOR JOURNAL of the 8th, in which you suggest me as a suitable delegate to the anticipated Constitutional Convention. I thank you for the complimentary terms in which the suggestion is made. Coming from the people of my old home, it is a mark of friendly partiality on your part which is peculiarly grateful to me.

The position itself will be one of such responsibility and honor as might well tempt the ambition of any man. The Convention, however, has not been called and may never be. It would, therefore, be premature and improper at present to announce myself definitely a candidate. I may say, though, that if the Convention is ordered by the next Legislature, and if your desire to send me as a delegate is shared by the rest of the county, I shall be pleased and proud to serve you in that capacity.

Respectfully, W. G. WELCH.

WONDERS NEVER CEASE.

A Reported Marvelous Invention by a Hungarian Stone-Mason.

Wonders will never cease! At least it seems so. Something new is constantly being invented, and if things continue the same way for another century nothing will be impossible, and it will not be necessary for people to work at all—simply sit by and see some mechanical contrivance perform every function in the labor world. However, for inventions and discoveries, it is safe to say that a St. Paul man carries off the palm. His name is August Boorfried, and he is a Hungarian about forty-nine years of age. He has lived in comparative poverty on the West Side for several years, earning a poor living by working at his trade of a stone-mason; but, if his new discovery proves a success—of which there is no doubt—he will count his wealth by the millions. The discovery is this: By a combination of chemicals, the nature of which he refuses to disclose, he has discovered a liquid which will dissolve stone with incredible rapidity. The dissolution is not the crumbling kind or disintegration occasioned by treating marble with sulphuric acid, but a complete transformation from solid to liquid. Marble and granite, lime and sandstone are alike dissolved by the mere submergence in a vat filled with dissolving liquid. No matter what kind or how hard the stone is, the effect is the same. What is the strangest part of it all is that the stone, after being dissolved, forms into a sort of sirupy substance, which can be applied to any thing having a stone or glass surface with a brush, and immediately hardens so that to make an impression on it even with a chisel is almost an impossibility. By applying some other chemical Boorfried has discovered that the liquid thickens into a heavy mass, which can be run into molds and baked like bricks. After it has been subjected to the heat for a certain length of time it becomes harder than flint, and almost as transparent as glass, and by polishing it assumes a brilliant luster. It varies in colors according to the kind of stone used, and can be had from a bright red to a beautiful azure blue. Now, Boorfried's idea is that this liquid of his can be used in making a substance for the construction of residences, floors, and even windows. By taking this liquid and sprinkling it on a street previously coated with asphalt a pavement as glossy and smooth as a toboggan slide can be produced. This would hardly be profitable, however, yet the idea is a good one, and by further research some process for roughening the surface will be discovered. Just imagine a residence built of transparent stone, so that when a lamp is lighted in the interior its rays, softened and changed into roseate hues, can be seen shining through from the street. The effect would be marvelous and beautiful. Mr. Boorfried claims that car wheels can be made from the stuff, also rails; and there is no reason why it should be doubted, if the other is true. He expects to go East and endeavor to interest wealthy capitalists to take hold of the matter with him. He refuses to state what the stone-melting liquid is composed of, as he says he does not intend that other people shall take away from him what has taken him nearly his whole life to perfect.—St. Paul Globe.

ON A SIAM-SE RIVER.

A Panorama Whose Equal Would Be Hard to Find.

Rain fell heavily during the night, washing the face of nature, burnishing the trees, clearing the air and thus brightening the whole landscape. The cool fresh morning air that bathed our hands and faces as we started soon after daybreak was scented with the fragrance of flowering shrubs and trees, and the panorama we passed through was delightful. Temples decorated with dark red and gold and picturesque monasteries were set like gems in the beautiful fringes of foliage that skirted the banks. Women and girls, gayly attired in a striped petticoat, or one of a small tartan, and a silk scarf thrown over the left shoulder, tripped along barefooted on their way to the market with baskets of flowers and garden produce. Here a group of men and women sat squatting on the sands, having a chat before crossing the ford. Three men, women and children, with their garments tucked up above their knees, laughed and joked as they waded the stream. Groups of children playing in the water dashed it about and splashed each other. Cattle were lowing on the banks on their way to pasture. The sun was lighting up the bald pates and yellow garments of the monks and acolytes, who were passing in procession carrying their begging bowls through the streets. Women and children were reverently awaiting the approach of the monks, and heaping little cups of rice and saucers of fish, and condiments into their bowls, while the monks—at least the young ones, who have the reputation of being a jovial crew—peeped over their fans, which were intended to veil fair women from their sight.—Blackwoods' Magazine.

Not A toge her Alone.

There was a very small audience present and it was rapidly dwindling away. On the stage the hero and the heroine are holding a rendezvous.

Hero to Heroine—Are we alone?
Heroine (thinking of the audience) No, for there are two fellows near the door who look as if they might be able to hear us.

TRAGEDY OF THE SEA.

A Homicide That Will Probably Always Remain a Mystery.

A strange case that of the seaman rescued from Arenas Key, the sandy island off the coast of Yucatan, the other day, and self-surrendered to justice because he had killed one of his companions. "I had to do it," he said; "it was my life or his. When he attacked me I shot him because he came rushing upon me with a knife. I was sorry I had to kill him, and I and my companion gave him Christian burial." If Charles Rendo had made this thing, which actually happened on that lone island in the tropic seas, one of the central points in a great novel, thousands of readers would have said: "How dramatic! how thrilling! and how improbable!" It would scarcely have occurred to them that it might really happen, just as strange things happen every day. The annals of shipwreck are filled with accounts of the unreasoning and generally disinterested dislikes which spring up between the unfortunate castaways. A man innocent of all guile suddenly finds his life in immediate danger from the unrestrained passion of one of his fellows. Freed from the restraints of law, and fancying that they may never be returned to a place where laws will become operative upon them again, men act out their fierce impulses. The man who has been shipwrecked on an island or an inhospitable coast with five or six companions in misfortune appreciates fully, when he gets back to the domain of law, that the finest triumph of civilization is the "keeping of the peace" in street and mart and all the busy haunts of men.

The Arenas Key homicide will always remain a mystery. He who committed it does not know why the man whom he killed persisted in assaulting him, or why he had sworn that he would never allow him to leave the island alive. His comrade, who saw the shooting, confirms the slayer's story in every particular. These three men were in no immediate danger of want on the island where they had been left. They had abundance of food and water, and would have been happy had not the passion of one of them flamed up at another, and refused to be pacified with any thing short of murder. The Department of Justice has done all that it could; it has thoroughly sifted the seaman's story, and accepting it as the statement of a case of legitimate self-defense, has allowed him to go free. The human mind is a fathomless mystery; the victim certainly did not even dream when he found himself upon the island with two companions that he was to be smitten with rage against one of them, and was, in the act of attacking him, to be slain. Nor did the slayer believe it possible that he could take a life. Perhaps he believed that his environment was entirely to blame, and that he has incurred no responsibility in blotting out an existence to defend his own. If he had done the deed where the law was operative he would always have felt a certain doubt as to whether he had acted rightly in slaying the aggressor.—Boston Journal.

ASSYRIAN CHRISTIANS.

A Pious People Endured in Their Habits and Customs.

The Ashiret Assyrians are wild and untutored in their habits and customs. Their Christianity consists in little more than a passionate clinging to a faith they do not comprehend, and which from this very fact is powerless to influence their morals. Not only are there no schools among them, but their clergy are incapable of instructing their flocks in the rudiments of religion; some of them are quite unable to conduct a service, others can repeat the important parts by heart, while a few can read the ancient manuscripts, which are still in daily use throughout the country because there are no printed books. It is comparatively rare to find a priest who can both read and write with facility; all other learning is absolutely wanting. Only during the winter months, when the snow blocks the entrances to the mountains, when all agriculture is at a standstill and Kurdish attacks become impossible, could these Ashiret give their minds to education; in the past winter R. V. W. H. Browne, of the Archbishop of Canterbury's mission, has been able to make a very small beginning in this direction. During the rest of the year the people till their ground and pasture their flocks armed to the teeth, ready to repel the attacks of which they live in constant dread. Indeed, the Ashiret Assyrians are in the position of a beleaguered garrison in a siege which is never raised; an unending succession of assaults and sorties leaves them neither time nor inclination to think of more peaceful matters. Their whole conversation is limited to three subjects—guns, the Kurds, and the harvest. On one occasion during my journey through the Ashiret valleys in 1886, after vainly trying to interest a chief in conversation, it occurred to me that a description of the Maxam gun might arouse him. The man's face brightened at the relation of the marvelous powers of the weapon, and when I had finished he said: "Ah, if we only had a gun like that we should not fear the Kurds! No man could take such a gun; it must have been invented by the angels!"—Century Review.
